

You never forget to cross a cheque. Then, why do you forget to strike off blanks in your KYC?

When filling your KYC, remember to exercise your right to choose the segment you want to trade in. Whether it's Equity or F&O or Currency Derivatives. Tick the one you want and strike off the one you don't.

Leaving the slot blank could lead to someone else making a choice for you, thereby making a financial commitment on your behalf, which you will be forced to honour.

You wouldn't keep your passport application form incomplete. Why do the same with your KYC?

Prefer dealing in equity only? Want to settle after each transaction? Trading for yourself only? Fill in all the relevant choices in your KYC and strike off what is not applicable.

Only when your KYC details are complete and correct can you prevent any ambiguity and financial loss.

You don't volunteer to drive a car when you don't know how. Why opt for digital contracts when you're not familiar with computers?

Not familiar with computers? Opt for physical contract notes instead of digital ones. If you do opt for digital contract notes, make sure you provide your own, active email id, otherwise your contract notes and other important notifications will never reach you. Once you do give your id, remember to check your email on a daily basis. That way you can monitor your transactions and get alerted to irregularities, if any.

Sharing your password could mean sharing your finances.

Share your ideas, share your music, share your photographs, but don't share your password.

Revealing your trading password to anyone is an open invitation for misuse.

Trades may be made on your behalf without your knowledge. And when you do get to know about it, it may be too late.

Do remember to change your password periodically, especially if you access your account from cyber cafes or public computers.

Waiting for your guest at departure instead of arrival?
It's like expecting funds when you have to pay up.

Suddenly discovered that instead of receiving money you owe your broker?

Surprised by the transactions? Do keep a regular check of your running account. Make sure there are no surplus funds lying idle in your account. Deposit as much is required for a transaction. And remember to settle the account on a monthly basis by settlement of funds and securities.

You're careful with your house keys, but why are you careless with your Power of Attorney instructions?

Your Power Of Attorney can be a convenient tool or an unnecessary nightmare.

The difference lies in how you administer it. Specify every right and the time frame of each right. Do not leave it open-ended or for an indefinite period. Give rights only to the extent of your transactions. Monitor your statements regularly and ensure that the right to revoke is part of the Power of Attorney clause.

Power of Attorney is like a remote. All the controls for your account are in your hands.

Power of Attorney (PoA) is the legal authority you give your Stock Broker to operate your demat account for purposes authorised by you. If you give PoA, retain control in your hands by choosing to receive Contract Notes, quarterly statement of accounts and demat account statement at your address.

Do not give authorisation to make investment decisions on your behalf to the PoA holder. Also, ensure that you are not giving powers to open and close account on your behalf to the PoA holder.

Power of Attorney is like a train reservation.

It can be cancelled anytime.

Power of Attorney (PoA) is the legal authority you give your Stock Broker to operate your account on your behalf, as per the authorisation given by you. Just like you have the authority to give PoA to carry out specific activities on your behalf, you also have the power to revoke or cancel a PoA at any point after giving the required notice.

At the time of giving PoA, make sure that the purpose for which PoA can be utilised is clearly stated and that your choice to receive contract notes, quarterly statement of funds & securities and demat transaction statements at your address is clearly mentioned. For detailed information on PoA, please log on to our website www.nseindia.com

You wouldn't leave your baby with a stranger. You shouldn't give your Power of Attorney to the wrong person.

Power of Attorney (PoA) is the legal authority you give your Stock Broker to operate your account on your behalf as per the authorisation given by you. So, please take care to give authorisation in favour of a registered Stock Broker only and not in favour of any other person or entity.

At the time of giving PoA, make sure that the purpose for which PoA can be utilised is clearly stated and that you are not authorising the PoA holder to open and close accounts on your behalf.

Unlike a marriage, Power of Attorney shouldn't be forever.

Power of Attorney (PoA) is the legal authority you give your Stock Broker to operate your account for purposes authorised by you. When you give PoA, take care to specify the period for which you are giving PoA. At the time of renewal, please review how the PoA has been used before deciding on renewal or otherwise. The period should never be left open in a PoA.

Also, make sure that you reserve the right to revoke the PoA at any time giving due notice. For detailed information on PoA, please log on to our website www.nseindia.com
